Woman's Dainty Underwear.

Just what sort of underwear to assume is one question that troubles the average woman very much. She doesn't want to wear so much that it will be bulky, and she doesn't want to wear too little for fear she will catch cold. She tries first one and then another shaped garment, and the wise woman is she who, having at last hit upon that which is most comfortable, makes it most dainty and assumes it for good. Very little linen is used nowadays for one's lingerie, the preference being given to cambric, Victoria lawn, nainsook or percale. The last is noted with tiny dots or wee flowers in pink, blue or lavender upon the white ground. Then when the garment is finished the edges have a triple scallop or a sharp point embroidered in color of the same color as the figure. This material, with its simple finish, is liked for sack shaped chemises, for night-dresses and for drawers. It is seldom, if ever, used for skirts.

The fancy for silk nightdresses still exists, but as there always have been women who would wear nothing but the clear white lawn or nainsook, and as these women are many, the makers of underwear are specially catering to them. Very much more fine work, that is, handwork, can be put upon a nainsook gown than upon a silk one, and the needlewoman can make more fine tucks, fancy stitches, gatherings, hemstitching and drawing of threads than ever would seem possible.—Mrs. Mallon in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Bayeux Tapestry.

Tapestry was brought into general use in western Europe, with many other elegancies of life, by the Moors of Spain. The oldest known specimen is the Bayeux tapestry, an epic in embroidery, carefully treasured for centuries in the cathedral of Bayeux, and now preserved in the hotel de ville of that place. Miss Strickland says of this piece of work: "It is beyond all competition the most wonderful achievement in the gentle craft of needlework that ever was executed by fair and royal hands."

It was done by Matilda of Flanders, wife of William the Conqueror, and the ladies of her court. It is a coarse linen cloth, 214 feet long and 30 inches wide, on which is worked in woolen thread of various colors a representation of the invasion and conquest of England by the Normans.

It contains the figures of about 625 men, 200 horses, fifty-five dogs, forty ships and boats, besides a quantity of quadrupeds, birds, trees, houses, castles and churches, all executed in the proper colors, with names and inscriptions over them to elucidate the story. It is a valuable historic document, as it gives a correct and minute portrait of the Norman costumes and their manners and customs.—Woman's Work.

Ailments of the Eyes.

No organ of the body is liable to a greater variety of ailments than the eye. More than forty such diseases are enumerated in medical works.

Some of these tend toward blindness, partial or complete. Some are highly contagious. Some are peculiar to the earliest stages of infancy; some to old age. Some are due to other diseases; some originate with the eye itself; some are the result of external wounds. Some are brought on by the improper use of the eye; some by the abuse of other organs. Some are partially or wholly curable; others are not.

As we have two eyes, the loss of one does not materially affect the other. The double provision is a wise and benevolent one in the case of an organ exposed to so many accidents from without and so many diseases from within.—Youth's Companion.

A Professional Housecleaner.

A woman in this city has a certain number of customers, all of whom are persons of wealth and willing to pay her well. She goes to the house of each customer at stated periods and removes all the furniture, curtains and pictures from the drawing rooms. She then directs the cleaning of the rooms and the furniture, taking care that the latter is not scratched or injured in the handling, and that all blemishes are removed by careful oiling. All the furnishings are then replaced according to her ideas. As she has excellent taste, she manages to create a good impression each time, but never duplicates a setting. She suggests the removal of unnecessary pieces or the addition of odd bits that will fill out her plan, and keeps the customer informed in regard to the changes of styles.—New York Sun.

Bimini and the Fountain of Youth.

Bimini was a fabulous island firmly believed in by the Indians of the Antilles, though they could give no further clue to its location than that it lay some hundreds of leagues north of Hispaniola. On this island was the famous fountain of youth, which had the power of restoring youth and giving perpetual health and vigor. It was the search for this fountain that led Ponce de Leon and Hernando de Soto to Florida, on the outskirts of which the island was generally supposed to be situated.—St. Louis Republic.

The Heart Beats Eight Hours Every Day.

That wonderful piece of mechanism, the heart, appears to work continually day and night, from birth to death, but in reality there are short pauses or rests between each beat, which, though minute in themselves, amount up in the aggregate to eight hours out of every twenty-four. These short pauses enable the heart to repair the waste which constant work entails and without which rest it would break down.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Why the Wren Is King.

The wren is chased every St. Stephen's Day on account of it betraying the Saviour by chattering in a clump of furze where he was hiding. It is called the "king of all birds," because it concealed itself beneath the wing of the eagle when that lordly bird claimed supremacy by soaring highest. "Here I am," said the wren, mounting above the eagle's head when the latter could go no higher.—Irish Times.

CURE BILIOUSNESS.

Small, pleasant, a favorite with the ladies.

A Plucky Young Woman.

A plucky young woman's tussel with four masked burglars in Augustus Findeisen's grocery store and dwelling last night saved the life of Findeisen, her father, aged seventy. Shortly after 8 o'clock in the evening the quartet of masked desperadoes entered Grocer Findeisen's place. The doorbell of the little store tinkled its warning to the small dwelling adjoining that somebody—possibly a purchaser—was in the grocery. Lillie, the thirty-nine-year-old daughter, an only child, living with the old Findeisen couple, answered the summons. She had no sooner entered the store than she was confronted by two masked men, each holding a revolver. In her fright she struck at the first one, wrenching the revolver out of his hand. The second man struck at her and attempted to hold her fast.

In the struggle that followed the man and woman rolled over and over on the floor, each striving to use the revolver upon the other. While this struggle was going on two more masked men had entered and passed through the store into the sitting room, where they seized the old man, and a terrible struggle ensued. With clubs, which had been improvised from fence pickets, the robbers beat the old man on the head and shoulders until he was unconscious. In the meantime the daughter had torn herself free from her assailant and gone to the assistance of her father. As she appeared in the house one of the masked men struck and knocked her down. She quickly recovered and ran out into the street, calling for help. Her cries, although not heard by the neighbors, frightened the four men, and all escaped. The entire affair did not last ten minutes.—Reading Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

When Not to Wear Diamonds.

Diamonds should not be worn in the morning ever.

They should not be worn when a simple visit is paid before 2 o'clock.

They should not be worn when one is doing charitable work.

They should not be worn where they are likely to attract so much attention that they will cause envy and heart burnings.

They should not be worn in profusion with any street toilet, although a small brooch, a pair of solitaire earrings and a ring which is concealed by the glove are frequently noticed on refined women.

They should not be worn in bathing.

This sounds a little odd, but as they have been seen in such places somebody evidently needs to be given a word or two about them.

They should not be worn to any extent, even in the evening, at places of amusement.

They should never be seen on children.

They should not be worn by people who are in mourning.

They should not be worn unless one's gown is in harmony with them, for a soiled, mussed costume and a profusion of diamonds is a very bad combination.

They should not be worn by men.

They should not be worn at all unless they are real, unless they are properly set and unless they are suited to the wearer.

Enormous earrings, pulling down the lobes of the ear, are the essence of vulgarity. Enormous pins that look like electric lights are in equally bad taste.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Look for the key.

Don't get angry at small things. Look at vexations now as you will view them thirty days from date. The angry man, who gets the wrong key and pushes and rattles the door till he breaks the lock, loses more time than if he had quietly gone for the right key, and pays for a new lock besides.—New York Recorder.

SILVER THE ISSUE.

To-day, according to a resolution adopted two weeks ago the silver question will be the special order in the House of Representatives and three days are to be devoted to its consideration. A determined effort is being made to postpone action on the re-monetization of silver until after the Presidential election. There are Eastern Democrats who fear that the passage of a free coinage bill by the House will injure the party in New York and New England, and as it is conceded by men of all parties that the President will veto the bill if it passes, they assert that the Democrats will gain nothing in the West by the passage of the bill, and the party may lose much by it in the East. The advocates of this non-committal policy, fortunately are in a minority and it is believed and hoped that the Western and Southern men will pass the Bland bill over the combined opposition of Republicans and gold bug Democrats. It is predicted too, that the Senate will pass the bill by a small majority, and that it will be sent to the President to sign or veto, as he feels disposed.

Should the President approve the bill it will right the infamous wrong of 1873, take the silver question out of politics and make money plentiful and times better. If he vetoes it the matter will be brought squarely before the people who will decide at the polls whether half the money of the country is to be demonetized, and an industry which gives employment to thousands and adds millions annually to the permanent wealth of the country, without competing with the products of its farm or the purchasing power of the millionaire may be increased.

It should be borne in mind by the people of the West and particularly of the silver producing States, whose present prosperity is involved, that the free coinage Democrats of the Mississippi Valley and South receive no word of encouragement from the silver producing States to offset the prediction that free coinage will cost the Democratic party the vote of every Eastern State. Such threats should not deter the friends of silver from upholding the free coinage cause. It is just and sooner or later it will prevail. What if every silver producing State save one has been R-republican? It does not follow that they will continue so against their own interests. Those men who are now considered available candidates for the Democratic nomination for President, were R-republicans some years ago. These are Senator Palmer of Illinois, Governor Boies of Iowa, and ex-Governor Gray of Indiana. Senator Peffer of Kansas, Senator Kyle of Dakota, Jerry Simpson, the Scotchless Statesman, and many other men of note in and out of Congress were Republicans four years ago. Only fools, it is said, never change their opinion, and as the people of the West are not fools there is hope that on the silver question there will be no concessions enough in the West to the party that favors free coinage to offset any deficiency in the East.

THE FREE SILVER LEAGUE.

The Washington correspondent of the New York World writes that Bland, the free silver leader, is one of the plainest men in the House. He wears a close-cropped dark beard, tinged with gray, and his high cheek bones jut out under his snapping dark eyes. His hair is almost as thick on top as Harter's, but it generally has an unkempt appearance, which doubtless arises from the fact that the Missourian is always running his hands through it. His nose is rather thin, and his voice has a nasal twang that at times makes his words almost undistinguishable. His dress might be his own, but it is not. It is a rather loosely fitting "hand-me-down" suit. Bland does not care for style. He is a great worker, and rises at an unearthly hour every morning, and sits up late at night. His early experience as a farmer in Missouri has made it impossible for him to sleep after the roosters in his neighborhood begin to crow.

A resolution has been introduced in the House of Representatives calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for a list of all persons engaged in the Coast and Geodetic Survey whose salaries were increased or decreased during the year 1891, and also for a list of those who resigned or were dismissed during that year. Discharged employees charge that the Coast Survey is conducted by a ring and the object of the resolution is to ascertain if the charge is true.

The Standard Oil Trust, one of the most gigantic monopolies of the century, has decided to wind up its affairs. It embraced all the oil companies of the country. All the property held by the trust, except stocks, will be disposed of at private sale, and the proceeds will be divided among holders of trust certificates. The disruption of this monopoly ought to reduce the price of coal oil, where the cost of transportation is not too high.

A bill has been introduced in the British Parliament for the creation of a Scottish legislative body. It purports giving home rule to Scotland, and as the question involved is similar to that of the Irish bill will be watched with considerable interest. The Liberals and some Conservatives are said to favor the bill.

It is stated as a fact that Secretary Blaine is imbued with the thirteen superstition, and will never sit at a table where there are thirteen persons.

MARRIAGE IN HIGH LIFE.

"Lucky" Baldwin's Daughter Elopes With Her Cousin.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—The announcement was made to-day that Anita Baldwin, daughter of the California millionaire, "Lucky" Baldwin, has eloped with her second cousin, George W. Baldwin, but whether the pair have gone home but a very few intimate friends know. They took their departure this morning and it is presumed they went north on their honeymoon, for they are married, having been joined together in the cabin of the tug, Elizabeth, five miles outside the Heads on the morning of January 5th. Five years ago George W. Baldwin, then a young man of about 20 years, came to this city from Crawfordville, Md. His father, an uncle of "Lucky" Baldwin of this city, had consigned the youth to the care of the proprietor of the Baldwin Hotel, and immediately upon appearing here George was given employment in the office of the hotel. Two years ago, it is stated, the fact dawned upon the millionaire that the affection that bound George and Anita was more than that which generally tied cousins together, and he made up his mind to keep them separated. Accordingly Anita was sent to Mills' Seminary. They often met, however, and early in 1891 George proposed marriage and was accepted by Anita. The latter knew her father would never consent to the marriage but the prospective loss of the inheritance did not trouble her. Affairs reached a climax last Christmas eve, when George Baldwin left his employment at the hotel.

Anita was but 17 years of age, and the marriage license could not be procured, so it was agreed that the ceremony should take place out far enough from shore to prevent the interference of the law and George Baldwin engaged the tug Elizabeth for the morning of January 5th. Millionaire Baldwin was not in town at the time. Reverend Julius Evangelical of St. Mark's German Evangelical Lutheran Church performed the ceremony. The secret of the wedding has been well kept, and it would not yet have been known had not the husband and wife become tired of living apart. After the wedding at sea Anita hoped to gain her father's consent to her prospective marriage with her cousin. She spoke in her own behalf and wrote long and affectionate letters pleading her cause, but the millionaire was obdurate, and when last Thursday he started to go to his ranch at Santa Anita, the young couple resolved to elope and allow the secret of the marriage to become public. Friday and Saturday were spent in making arrangements for the trip north. Yesterday Mrs. Baldwin wrote a letter to her father in which she made a confession and implored forgiveness for herself and husband. The missive was mailed in the afternoon and will be received by the millionaire at Santa Anita to-morrow morning.

The Exclusion Act Very Distasteful to the Chinese.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Tsui Kwo Gin, Chinese Minister, has prepared a letter to the Secretary of State urging an early response to various communications the Chinese Government has sent this Government with reference to the restriction of Chinese immigration. The Star to-night prints an interview had with the Minister, in which he says: "For several years I have been endeavoring to secure better treatment for my people at the hands of the United States. If the United States wishes to put a stop to Chinese it should be done by means of a treaty with my country. For the United States to agree to a treaty providing for the admission of Chinese and then override it by an Act of Congress is hardly acting in good faith. By your Constitution you encourage immigration and insure fair treatment of all alike, and yet your treatment of the Chinese is inconsistent with the Constitution and principles laid down by George Washington."

The reporter asked: "If the United States put further restriction on Chinese immigration would China exclude Americans from her territory?"

The answer was a long time coming and was a diplomatic one. "It seems to me," said the Minister, "that Americans should consider the situation and withdraw from China of their own free will. I will answer your question by asking you one. Let us suppose the American Minister in London should say to the Chinese Minister, 'you keep away from the American Legation House, I don't want you here.' Do you think the Chinese Minister would visit the American Legation any more, and do you think the American Minister would expect a welcome at the Chinese Legation? You may draw your own inference. The American people are talking a great deal about reciprocity just now, they should remember reciprocity works two ways."

A Terrible Explosion.

CHARLEVILLE, Mich., March 21.—A terrible explosion of boilers took place at East Jordan this morning. The big mill of the East Jordan Lumber Company was torn to atoms. Seven men were killed, and several others fatally injured by the explosion. The mill had been running but ten minutes when the explosion occurred. The inside of the big building is a complete wreck. The seven men who were killed outright or died within a few minutes are Arbutus Cook, Will Beach, Simon Carney, J. O. Brown, Peter Sheldon, Hantey Hunt and A. Christy. Engineer James Carter had gone to breakfast, leaving the fireman, John Ringle, in charge. Ringle, James Smith, Sandy Reinhardt and Charles Brown are all in a critical condition. It is impossible to say what caused the explosion.

A Reno Boy Commits Suicide.

LODI, March 21.—J. B. Timblin, a young man employed on the Coblenz ranch, committed suicide to-day by taking morphine. He came to town yesterday and got on a spree, and told some friends that his girl had gone back on him and that some one had to die. Timblin has an uncle named Dr. Farley in Fresno, and his mother, who is well off, lives at Reno, Nevada. It is said that the unfortunate young man met a young lady at Fresno last Summer and followed her here and became engaged to her and that last week they had a lover's quarrel, and this is the reason for his rash act.

House Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The Committee on Printing reported in favor of expunging from the Congressional Record of the 17th all that portion of the speech made by Walker of Massachusetts which refers to muggumps, etc., but which was not delivered.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the free wool bill. Goodnight of Kentucky annulled the protective system in a speech of some length. Snodgrass of Tennessee consumed his time in opposing the bill donating five millions to the World's Fair. The committee then arose and the House adjourned.

Four Men Killed by an Explosion.

ST. LOUIS, March 21.—The boiler at the works of the Laclede Fire Brick Company, in the suburbs of the city, this afternoon exploded, killing Larry Hussey, Reynold Diebake, Joseph Beckley and John Danbuceti and seriously injuring Frank Seeger, Morgan Inman, James Somersfield and John Pella. Several other men were slightly hurt. The boiler was one of a battery of six, and the explosion was caused, it is supposed, by it having run out of water and receiving a sudden influx of cold water.

Billy Smith Knocked Out.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—Billy Smith, a Boston lightweight, was to-night defeated by Billy Armstrong in fourteen rounds at the Occidental Club. In the second round Smith knocked Armstrong down and he remained on his knees ten seconds, but the claim that he was counted out was not allowed. In the fourteenth Armstrong knocked him down five times, and finally knocked him out by an uppercut on the mouth.

Senate Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Over half an hour was occupied in the presentation of memorials, most of them from State granges on a great variety of subjects.

The Senate bill to change the name of the customs collection district and a part of Wilmington, Cal., to that of Los Angeles was taken from the calendar and passed.

MARRIED LIFE.

Two flowers blossom on one stem,
Two streamlets mingling run,
And love and habit blending make
Two lives as truly one.

One in each interest, hope and fear,
Whatever chance befalls,
One in affection's bond though two,
To comfort, strengthen, guide.

When passion's torrid zone is past,
Heart's only draw more near;
And silent sympathies of love
Strike deeper year by year.

When every little fault is seen,
And every fleeting mood,
And all the nobler impulses
Are shared and understood.

Yet still our secret, separate dread,
Will sometimes cloud each mind;
And while must face this cruel world
When left alone behind?
—W. E. H. Lucky in London Spectator.

Matrimonial Advice for Young Women.

Rev. Dr. John A. Brooks preached recently on marriage. Among other things he said: "A young lady ought never to marry until she is matured, and then when she finds a man to suit her she ought to marry him. But do not marry to keep from being an old maid. Old maids are honorable. Nearly all the women poets, orators, composers and queens have been old maids. Do not marry a stinky man. He will always be complaining of your expenditures, and will refuse you the necessary money to insure your happiness and will lead you a miserable life. Do not marry a fop or dandy. His brains are all in his heels and clothes. While he may be a good thing for the girls to play with, he would be an awful thing to live with.

"Do not marry a lazy man, for even if possessed of gold it will soon be dissipated, and he will not have the energy to earn a living. Do not marry a stranger. You ought to know the man and his antecedents. These might be such as would shame you and bring sorrow upon your heart. Venture slowly. Do not marry simply for money. Money may take wings and fly away and leave you with nothing to love and admire. Do not marry an immoral man. His association with you would drag you down to his own moral level. Be sure that the man you marry is an honest man in all things. Let him be an industrious man and he will build up a home and maintain it with all the necessities and comforts of life. Be sure he is possessed of manliness, and finally that he has love and reverence for God. A man who does not love and honor God will not love and honor his wife."

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it. Mrs. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

The Garterphone.

An ingenious little instrument called the garterphone has recently been invented which, attached to any lady's garter, registers the distance she walks each day. The physical culture craze has put an end to the reign of the languid belle. Women go in for all sorts of outdoor sports, and just now walking is the fad. The heroine of the hour is the woman who has walked the greatest number of miles a day. Hitherto it has been impossible to determine to a nicety the distance covered in a given time, as when a day is spent in the deviating peregrinations of a shopping tour. Now the young woman proudly exhibits her garterphone to admiring friends, and it is not unusual for the little machine to register five or six miles, and even ten occasionally.

The young woman who was too lazy to walk and yet who did not wish to be entirely out of the race, sat in the hammock all day enjoying a novel, while she swung her pretty foot back and forth, thereby attaining the same result on her garterphone as her more energetic sister.—San Francisco Examiner.

A Women's Hospital.

The New York Women's hospital has received some much needed assistance of late, including $100,000 from Morris K. Jessup, in memory of his mother, the income of which is to be devoted to those who are unable to pay their board at the hospital. From the Fayerweather estate a fund of $10,000 has been received, and the executors have decided to add $200,000 and one-half of the ultimate residuary estate. These gifts will enable the hospital to change its present noisy quarters to a more desirable location, and to provide a more commodious home for the many suffering women who come here for aid. Nearly 700 indoor patients have been treated the past year, over one-third of whom were free patients, and as many more have received aid outside of the building.—New York Ledger.

The Founder of a Girls' School.

Mrs. Harriet L. Packer, whose sudden death in Brooklyn a few days ago brought a sense of loss and personal bereavement to many Brooklyn homes, was a woman of rare grace and beauty. Her air of distinction was as marked as her sincerity and nobility of character. In 1853 her liberal gift of funds to endow the Packer Institute in motion a train of educational influences which have benefited not Brooklyn only, but the numerous other towns from which Packer students come. Mrs. Packer belonged to the Church of the Pilgrims, of which Rev. Dr. Storrs is the pastor. She was the widow of William S. Packer, who died in 1851.

The Russian Boot for Women.

The Russian boot is a veritable boon for women who suffer with chilled feet indoors. It is fashioned of red leather, flannel lined and edged at the top with narrow black fur. An odd nickel chain fastens across the instep.—Shoe and Leather Facts.

A Grand Girl.

A Cherryfield girl living two miles from school has not been absent or tardy for a day during an attendance of three and a half years. The distance traveled in the time strings out 3,640 miles.—Lewiston Journal.

Dear Against Deer.

Miss Maggie Casey, of Grant's Pass, was attacked by a pet deer the other day, and but for the timely arrival of assistance would have been killed.—Portland Oregonian.

Maggie Among the Greeks.

With the ancient Greeks the magpie was supposed to possess the soul of a gossiping woman, and we all know how unlucky it is to meet an odd number of the species in Ireland.—Irish Times
